Around About the Village

Frank Laut has purchased the house recently vacated by the Sunday family.

Inspector Warren spent Tuesday of this week at the local high school.

Dan McArthur spent a couple of days this week visiting relatives at Hanna.

Sid Willis of Turner Valley, spent last week-end at his home in Crossfield.

Mrs. G. Moore of Ottawa is spending a holiday at the home of her brother, Fred Collins.

Mrs. Percy Fleming spent a few days in town last week and left on Thursday for her home in Medicine Hat.

Donald McCaskill left on an extended visit to his old home in Ontario and expects to spend the winter there.

The Chronicle offers sincerest apologies to the Walcott family for the error that occurred in their announcement in this last issue.

Frank McDonald left on Saturday for Ontario where he will take delivery of a new car and drive it home.

The girls of the Senior G.G.T. wish to thank all who contributed to their "Yard of Dimes", the venture was a great success.

The Misses Eunice Harrison and Madeline Snyder enrolled last week at the Henderson Business College in Calgary for a course of training.

The next meeting of the Home and School Association will be held in the school on Thursday, October 21 commencing at 8:30 p.m.

Miss Eileen Montgomery, a student at the University of Alberta at Edmonton, spent the week-end visiting at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Montgomery.

Owing to the accident to Mr. Anderson, a hurry-up call had to be sent to Calgary for a minister to conduct the funeral service for the late Mr. A. A. Banta; Rev. S. J. Parsons of Scarborough United Church in Calgary, was contacted and arrived here just in time.

Rev. J. R. B. Vance was a visitor in Vancouver last week where he assisted Dean Cecil Swanson to officiate at the marriage of his sister, Miss Caroline Edith Wilmfrid Vance, to John Blythe Rogers.

We would warn our readers that when driving a car in Calgary, every care should be taken to observe the regulations when driving within a school zone. We hear of one of our neighbors being caught and expected to be fined at least $15 when he gets the summons. He admits he was not driving very fast and did not even know he was in a school zone, which seem to cover about half of the city.

With the continued fine weather harvesting is almost over in this district. This week should see the end of both combining and threshing. Fall crops to have broken all records this year, with some crops averaging over 50 bushels to the acre. A little more threshing was done this year leaving more straw, which, with the abundant hay crop, should assure lots of stock feed for the winter.

Rev. C. W. Anderson met with what might have been a serious accident when returning to town after the church service at Madden on Sunday last. A truck turning out of a side road on to the highway failed to stop and Mr. Anderson was too close to do anything but slam into it. The body of the car was badly battered and most of the glass broken after rolling over a time or two in the ditch. Fortunately Mr. Anderson was alone at the time and he got off with a bad shaking up and some bruises but will have to have an X-ray to determine how badly his chest was hurt.

Complimenting Miss Audrey McLean, an October bride-elect, her aunt, Mrs. A. W. Eisner, entertained at her home last Wednesday evening at a cup and saucer shower. The guests embroidered quilts for the guest of honor and she was also presented with a corsage with a note guiding her on a treasure hunt for gifts which were found in a "wishing well." Mrs. George Y. McLean, mother of the guest of honor, presided at the tea table. Assisting were Miss Joy Stevens and Miss Ruth Eisner.

A Thank You

A letter received by the Chronicle from Mr. C. R. Dickey, general secretary of the Alberta Tuberculosis Association, expresses the appreciation for all the co-operation extended to the Alberta Tuberculosis Association and the Department of Health by the people of Crossfield and district in the survey conducted here recently by the Christmas Seal Mobile Chest X-ray Unit. Mr. E. R. Baxter, Director of Surveys, asks that sincere thanks be extended to the workers, naming Mr. E. M. Tweedle, Mrs. W. Aldred, Mr. and Mrs. H. Munby, Mr. and Mrs. H. May, Mrs. A. E. Edlund, Mrs. H. Bannister, Mrs. M. Montgomery, Rev. J. W. MacDonald and Hugh McIntyre, and all their co-workers. The Chronicle is glad to pass this on to its readers, believing that the effort was well worth while in making such a notable contribution to the health and welfare of the community.

Harry Kinney, well-known old-timer of the east district, is a patient in the Belcher hospital.

The next regular meeting of the C.W.L. will be held at the home of Mrs. Fred Collins on October 22. Don't forget the C.W.L. bazaar to be held in Laut's store on October 30. This will include the raffle of the lovely hand crocheted table cloth now on display at the Bannister Electric.

With everything as dry as it is, everyone, both town and country, will do well to carry the past Fire Prevention week right on until the snow flies. One never knows the minute the wind will shift to another direction and a fire once started may do a lot of damage before it can be brought under control.

Another fire was started on Monday by sparks from a train about a mile south of town. A brick wind from the west soon carried it through the stubble on the farm of Ralph Pass and into Levi Smith's pasture which had been saved for winter grazing. A large crowd soon gathered, including several truck loads of Army personnel who happened to be passing and with pikes and rifles ran a fire guard around the Smith buildings.

George Webber, Drummeller, was elected president of the Drummeller Desnery, Catholic Youth Federation at the convention of that body held at Rockyford on October 1. Other officers named were, Anselm Saunders, Blesker; Gene Velker, Rockyford, secretary; Mary Makalosi, Drummeller, treasurer; Councilors, Nora Crough, East Coulee; Bill Keeler, Stettin; Tom Mason, Crossfield, and Donna Jarosh, Castairs.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY

The Lady and the Mouse

By Lila Lennon

Words Were Different From The Dream, But Scene The Same.

TESS had a problem. And when you take to discussing your problems with a small, friendly grey mouse ... it's time for action.

The mouse's name was Roger, and he was a nightly visitor in the Blair kitchen. The first time he and Tess met, they stared at each other a moment, and when Tess said "Hi!" and tossed him a nibble of cheese, he decided it was safe to stay. Each night thereafter, but only when Tess was alone, he came out for his cheese.

Tess sat dejectedly on a tall kitchen stool, polishing off a sandwich and a glass of cold milk. "You see, Roger," she addressed the mouse in the corner, "it's this way. I'm in love with Jeff. I have been, ever since we were kids."

Her tone was wistful, and it was no trouble at all to picture Jeff. Tall and clean-lined, eyes that crinkled at the corners when he laughed ... a shock of unruly red hair ... Tess continued plaintively, and Roger twitched his nose understandingly.

"The trouble is, Jeff just doesn't see me as a desirable woman. I'm the hey-heh kid, and a swell pal. I can swim and sail a boat. I can ride horse-back and ski. ... Oh, yes, I can do all the things he does, and just as well, because he's spent years teaching me how."

"Pal," she said disgustedly. "If he calls me that just once more, I'll bark like a dog!"

Roger made a tiny squeaking sound. "What's that?" Oh, yes, he'd give me the shirt off his back, but I don't want it ... unless his arms are in it, and around me!"

Roger made a careful circuit of the kitchen and came back to nibble. Tess sighed. "What can I do, Roger? I've tried. The night I wore that seductive, low-cut gown, I asked me if I was sick. The time I did my hair up on my head, he told me to stop playing grown-up. And when I tried that new perfume, he wrinkled his nose and said, 'What's that, big water?'"

She waved the empty glass dramatically. "See what I mean? It's very discouraging, being in love with a guy who used to watch your mother change your diapers!"

Tess continued mournfully. "Here I am, twenty, and developing a most frustrating complex. I'm positively haunted by a dream ... I've had it for years and years!"

Tess hugged her knees. The same old dream, with variations, of course. But, the moment always came when Jeff held her close and whispered, "Darling ... I adore you!" Or Jeff, his voice rough with demanding desire ...

"You're mine ... mine!" Cold fingers tapped her spine, and Tess shivered. Roger twitched his tail sympathetically, but went right on eating. Tess eyed him. You don't care at all do you?" she accused.

Roger trembled with dignity. "I'm really worried," she continued slowly. "Especially since that five-foot piece of fluff, ivory, came to town. She's little and cute and cunning. She bats her eyes at Jeff and makes he's so-o-o big and strong! And Jeff, the goon, positively drools!"

Tess snorted, and Roger jumped. "I'll bet she'd even be afraid of you, Roger. She'd scream and fling herself into Jeff's arms!"

Roger stared at her unblinkingly, and Tess stared back. "Roger!" she exclaimed.

The idea held her entranced, and Roger nodded his head gravely. "You'll have to help," she admonished. "You never come out when anyone's here, but tomorrow night I'll lure Jeff for a late snack. She shook her finger at Roger. "See that you put in an appearance, hear?"

Roger flicked his tail and stalked to his hole. Tess clicked off the kitchen light and went to bed, but her dreams were persistent. Jeff, holding her tenderly in his arms ... Jeff, murmuring, "Darling ... I adore you!"

Luring Jeff to the kitchen was a simple matter. It merely meant dangling a baked ham sandwich under his nose. Jeff agreed it was a good night for baked ham. Tess put on a beguilingly-buffed apron and pattered slowly, keeping an eye out for Roger. He was late, the ungrateful wretch!

"Hurry up, woman. I'm starved!" Jeff pounded the table and Tess groaned inwardly. Roger would never show up with all this noise!

At that moment Roger bravely exhibited a twitching nose. Tess let out a screech and clambered to a chair.

Jeff stared. "What's eating you?" he demanded.

Tess pointed at the gulvering Roger. "A mouse!" she wailed. "Oh, Jeff, get him!"

Jeff's mouth fell open and he followed her finger. It was a brilliant lunge, but Roger whirled into the pantry.

"Missed him," Jeff muttered and turned to Tess. She stood high above him, holding her skirt around her.

"Are you going to stand up there all night?" he demanded.

"Do you think he'll be back?" Jeff grunted. "After that screech of yours?" He looked up at her. "Imagine, you're afraid of mice! Here, get down."

He held out his arms and Tess climbed straight into them. She swung both arms around his neck and hung on. Jeff slowly closed his arms around her.

Tess looked at him a long moment, and her lips were very close. Jeff had a hypnotized expression on his face. He couldn't help it, he kissed her. For several seconds, the world whirled delightfully.

"Well," Jeff said at last. "Little Tessie, all grown up! I've been waiting for this day, dope. It's about time!"

Tess grinned. The words were different from the dream, but the scene was the same. That's all that counted.

"Roger!" she said softly. (Copyright Western Newspaper Syndicate)

Curb Joy-Riding In Official Cars

VICTORIA, B.C.—The British Columbia Government has cracked down on joy-riding in government cars.

After a checkup indicated many such vehicles were being used by civil servants for pleasure driving, the province equipped all cars in its fleet with special red and white license plates, which will make them easily recognizable if driven after business hours.

If this step does not bring results, the province is considering keeping all its cars in a central pool, from which they may only be issued for specified trips.

The first woman to sit on the Polish Supreme Court is Mrs. Zofia Gawronska.

Prairie Farmers Use Latest Machines To Bring In Their Crops

Last word in harvesting efficiency is the "pusher" or self-propelled combine, capable of covering 20 acres in an ordinary working day. Equipped with powerful headlights, these monsters are roaring around prairie fields day and night on the Regina, Sask., plains area, to take off a crop that will yield, in some places, 30 bushels to the acre. The combine has ended the need for harvest excursions from Eastern Canada, since one man on a combine is able to replace a whole threshing crew. The machine shown at bottom was one of the earlier types of harvester combines, tractor-drawn, and capable of doing almost as much work in a day as a threshing crew of ten men. The outfit is straight combining a crop of oats. Unweary, ripened fields are usually "swathed" and the swath picked up after a week or more of curing and ripening.—Central Press Canadian.

Plump, Better Turkeys Aim Of Inspectors

WINNIPEG.—The main course of your Christmas dinner is about to get a careful scrutiny in these parts.

Several thousand turkeys scattered around the prairie provinces—some of their life expectancy only a couple of months—are to undergo government inspection. The object: To provide plump birds with straight drumsticks and well-shaped wattlebones for Canadian tables come Dec. 25.

Manitoba, along with Saskatchewan and Alberta, this month will commence its annual inspection of turkey flocks—a voluntary procedure designed to improve the province's methods of breeding, feeding, disease control and management.

Birds to be government-approved—and what bird would want to be otherwise—must be purchased stock. The flock must be free from evidence of disease or parasites and must show "a strong constitutional vigor."

The gobbler you'll eye with relish on Christmas Day lived in a "well-designed and constructed house." A home which had to be kept clean and disinfected.

Even the turkey's love-life had to be up to government standards: Approved females were mated only with "AAA", "AA", or "A" grade males. The inspections last for about a month. Last year 5,000 birds were inspected in Manitoba alone.

The government supervision has made for a better type of bird, agriculture officials say.

"A few years ago turkeys were thin and rangy. Now it's a heavier, more plump and thoroughly improved bird."

Pass the gravy, please.

INDIANS UNDERGO CHANGE OF HEART

CHURCHILL, Man. — Indians of the North River Reservation may have undergone a change of heart.

In July, they would have nothing to do with a visiting Treaty Party, complaining that they wanted the Government to provide a new uniform for their chief. The Indians would not accept their annual treaty money and shunned the party.

But a Royal Canadian Mounted Police officer who visited the reservation recently to bring out the reservation reported he received a friendly reception. The Chief shook his head and expressed the hope of seeing him next summer.

Officials hope it means the tribe will soon be ready to smoke the peace pipe over the treaty money.

Natural Gas Wells Located In Peace River District

VANCOUVER.—Natural gas wells in the Peace River block on both the British Columbia and Alberta side of the boundary have been located by a Vancouver firm which is contemplating construction of a gas pipe line to the coast.

Latest find is on the Alberta side, where a well which was drilled by Pacific Petroleum Company of Vancouver about 20 miles northeast of Dawson Creek, is reported to have returned a flow of nearly 20,000,000 cubic feet of gas daily.

Norman R. Whittall, a member of the group which formed the Peace River Natural Gas Co. Ltd., and a director of Pacific Petroleum, reports that his firm has found gas in several wells in B.C.

One of the wells, near Rolla, B.C., shows very favorable results, he said.

Drillers are following a trend in the district and although showings are good it might be some time yet before a field large enough to supply Vancouver with natural gas might be found.

Gas from Alberta wells is still under control of that province and no indication has been given yet if export will be allowed.

The Peace River company intends to build a line through B.C. to the coast to bring gas here.

The principal families of plants are distributed world-wide.

Memory Lingers

Queen Victoria Still Revered At Balmoral, Scotland

BALMORAL, Scotland.—Queen Victoria has been dead nearly 50 years but here in the Dee Valley, where her memorial cairns on every hill and her picture on cottage walls, her influence remains. The old people remember her, a stout "body" with trailing skirts and a passion for tartan, who visited their humble homes, even at hours when the household was unprepared.

They think there never was a more devoted Scot by adoption. She made the Highlands, then remote and mysterious, into a fashionable summer resort for the wealthy.

It all began 100 years ago this month when the Queen came to Balmoral for the first time. In her diary she wrote: "All seemed to breathe freedom and peace, and make one forget the world and its turmoil."

The Queen and the Prince Consort came by yacht to Aberdeen and they then drove by coach up the shining Dee Valley with the hills coming close about them. Green meadows beside the hurrying river, the purple heather, soaring pines, ferns and the granite of dark Lochnagar, the dominating mountain, charmed the Royal visitors used to the soft English countryside.

Baggage Tips For Overseas Travellers

Travellers proceeding overseas may take foodstuffs as baggage in the following quantities, including 100 lbs. per person. Butter, cheese, rice and shortening not to exceed 5 lbs. per person.

Soap and sugar not to exceed 10 lbs. per person.

Flour not to exceed 7 lbs. per person.

Persons contemplating taking any of the above commodities should contact the local Customs and obtain blank permit forms before forwarding their baggage, and in ample time to allow for proper checking. This will obviate any necessity for a check at the port of embarkation.

: STAMP CORNER :

By JAMES MONTAGNES

Japan has issued stamps to a set to educators, including Bille Argentina has issued a stamp marking 200 years since establishment of postal services on the Plata River (right).

First of the 1949 catalogues has been received, and it is an innovation. Issued by the famous English stamp house of Stanley Gibbons, London, the new catalogue contains only issues of the reign of King George VI and associated reigns in parts of the world now independent, but which used to be in the British Empire. This is to be known as Part I of the Stanley Gibbons British Empire catalogue. The second section, containing stamps from 1840 to roughly 1937, is to be issued later this year or early next year.

The new catalogue was issued to save the limited supply of paper in England. Many collectors, specializing only in the stamps of the reign of King George VI, are not interested in earlier issues, and a complete British Empire catalogue would be useless, a waste of precious paper. The new catalogue follows the old fairly closely, with a few exceptions, such as data on sideways watermarks, shades, wartime papers, bilingual pairs and some changes in perforation listings. While there have been some re-arrangement of the stamps in the catalogue in some countries, catalogue numbers have remained the same.

The editors of the catalogue take exception with the new British post office policy of issuing frequent special sets, and feel that British Empire stamp collecting will take a drop if this policy is expanded. They are especially bitter about the "commemorial" aspects of the silver wedding anniversary stamps of high value, pointing out that "the main object was to secure foreign currency by sales of stamps to collectors abroad." They rap the government for its policy on sales and importation of stamps from non-sterling currency areas, which includes Canada and Newfoundland, and point out that by issuing 11 stamps they are creating the ideal medium for the illegal transfer of British currency abroad, as no controls which were ever created can stop the circulation of such small pieces of paper." 2796

Holland has issued stamps to 50th anniversary of Queen Wilhelmina's reign, and to new Queen Juliana, (right).

Of special interest in the catalogue is the detail on Japanese occupation stamps issued in Burma and Malaya, and the high value of these stamps today, due to the absence of supposed large stocks of these stamps in the former occupied areas.

PRODUCE BELT "IRON LUNGS" FOR INFANTILE PARALYSIS VICTIMS

NEW HEAVEN.—Cheap, feather-weight "iron lungs" for infantile paralysis victims can be made from rubberized cloth or transparent plastic, two Yale University scientists said.

Folded up, the cloth or plastic lung could be carried in a suitcase. It would weigh only a few pounds, and could be mass produced to be available quickly anywhere, they said. The artificial lungs made of iron are big, weigh 500 to 600 pounds, and cost from $3,000 to $16,000.

A design for the cloth lung is described by Dr. Harold Lampert and Ralph D. Eichhorn in the magazine Science, published recently.

A small model, made from rubberized cloth, worked successfully on rats in demonstrations here. Bigger ones for humans can be mass produced after some technical problems are solved, they said.

Tests also show promise that completely transparent lungs could be made from sheets of vinyl plastic, Dr. Lampert said. This would make it easier for patients to see inside the lung.

The cloth lung is built something like a thermos flask. In the thermos, a vacuum between the outer and inner wall keeps liquids hot or cold. The cloth lung also has a hollow space or tube between airtight inner and outer walls. When air is pumped into this hollow, the lung becomes rigid.

Blown up this way, the cloth lung is like a long, flat closed pipe or cylinder. The patient lies inside, in the roomy interior. At one end is a plywood disc with a sponge-rubber neck-piece that acts as a seal. The patient's head protrudes through this seal.

Air then can be pumped in and out of the chamber. The rise and fall in pressure on the chest keeps the person's lungs working. Polio victims need this artificial breathing when muscles of the diaphragm or chest become paralyzed.

Rooster Has Right To Crow

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—If a rooster has "a constitutional right to crow," the rooster's owner apparently believes he can sue anyone who seeks court action against him.

At any rate, Hugh Browning filed a suit for damages against Mrs. Theima Blevins, asking $20,500 for what he claims was her "malicious prosecution" of him.

Browning was in court May 25 on a warrant signed by Mrs. Blevins. She declared that his rooster crows so much she had not had a good night's sleep in several weeks. Judge Homer McCallan said at the time that a rooster has "a constitutional right to crow."

The judge dismissed the case. In his damage suit, Browning alleged he was humiliated and embarrassed by the prosecution of Mrs. Blevins.

NEW TECHNIQUE

Mental Profile Of Abilities

WASHINGTON.—A new way to tell whether a boy is suited to become a draftsman, cashier, writer or an engineer, was reported here.

The new technique is known as the mental profile. Dr. Louis L. Thurstone, professor of psychology at the University of Chicago, told the 100th meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

He said the I.Q. test for an intelligence yardstick is "inadequate for the description of a person's mental abilities."

"Instead," he said, "we need a profile of his abilities. The mental profile is a diagram showing an individual's ratings in each of the primary mental abilities."

One such primary ability discovered, he disclosed, is the ability to visualize objects in space. It is called the space factor and is denoted by the letter "S". Still another factor represents facility in doing simple arithmetical tasks. That factor is known by the letter "N".

"The number factor," Dr. Thurstone said, "is not heavily involved in arithmetical reasoning or in mathematics. In fact, it would not be surprising to find good mathematicians who are relatively poor in this factor. On the other hand, a cashier would soon quit his job if he were poor in the number factor."

Still another factor is called verbal comprehension and has been denoted "V". It is represented, Dr. Thurstone said, by tests of vocabulary or verbal reasoning as in the interpretation of proverbs or the comprehension of difficult prose.

"Another verbal factor," he said, "is the word fluency or factor 'W'. Such fluency factor W is involved in those tasks in which the individual must produce the words himself in some restricted context, whereas the verbal comprehension factor V is involved in understanding the verbal material that is given to him."

Thurstone said that students whose profiles are highest in several verbal abilities are usually interested in some linguistic occupation such as writing or journalism.

"Students whose profiles are highest in reasoning and in visualization are usually interested in physical science or engineering," he said. "Sometimes, a mental profile shows an outstanding ability which the subject has not been aware of."

Latest Style! Two-Belt Frock

PARIS.—Latest fashion wrinkle: Two belts to one frock.

One is worn around the waist; the other may be worn around the hips or under the bust. The latter position emphasizes the currently fashionable "Directoire" line.

Drawstrings to pull the waist in the narrow dimension demanded by 1948 styles are replacing belts altogether in other models.

TALK KINDLY TO DUCKS FOR MORE EGGS

LONDON.—Talk kindly to your ducks and you'll get more eggs, says "The People's Paper," A. S. Parsons.

He claims that ducks are more intelligent and more responsive than chickens.

By talking gently to young ducks about to lay you can encourage them to become tame and docile, he says. "They are much more intelligent and more responsive than frightened or unhappy birds."

ON THE SIDE —By E. V. Darling

Nothing is thought rare which is new and far away; Yet we know that what was worn Some twenty years ago Comes into grace again.

(Above can only be applied to feminine fashions. When men adorne a style it is for keeps. The high choker collar, the fancy vest, patent leather shoes, the paddock overcoat, peg-top trousers, the derby hat and fancy colored handkerchiefs on straw hats are only a small number of the many styles men have given up and never revived. Yet women are now featuring many things that were fashionable when their grandmothers were little girls.)

The Magic Circle, a society of professional magicians in Great Britain, has refused admission to female conjurers on the grounds that women can't keep a secret and, therefore, would reveal how many of the tricks were done.

Never saw a feminine magician myself. But I question the claim one couldn't keep her tricks a secret. While women are somewhat free with other people's secrets, they keep their own very well. Your wife probably has several secrets even you will never know.

HORSES AND WOMEN

It is said a book with "How to" in its title rarely fails. Somebody should write a book for feminine readers titled, "How to Wear a Hat." Most women don't know how to wear hats. They wear their headgear in a way that detracts rather than adds to their appearance. I believe it was T. P. O'Connor who said, "The women of Dublin are the most beautiful in Europe but you can't tell it because of the hats they wear." The cleverest wearers of hats are the Parisiennes. The book, "How to Wear a Hat," should be written by a Frenchwoman.

The test of greatness in a thoroughbred is the animal's ability to get out in front at a race and stay there to the finish with the best of good horses trying to get ahead of him. Economic Study Of B.C. Poultry Farms

A poultry farm survey is to be made immediately on the B.C. lowland and on Vancouver Island with the object of obtaining information from which production and maintenance costs can be calculated. These cost figures will be used as a basis for comparison of methods of management.

The survey will bring together for analysis the experience of poultrymen who have operated farms in the district over a period of years. The knowledge of methods of management which have proved successful under practical farm conditions may then be made available as a guide for future operations by individual farmers and the community as a whole.

The project will be undertaken by the Economics Division, Dominion Department of Agriculture, stationed at the University of British Columbia.

USE RADAR IN SPOTTING ICEBERGS

CHURCHILL, Man.—Radar worked perfectly in spotting icebergs in Hudson Bay during the voyage of the Canadian destroyers Nootka and Haida from Halifax to Churchill, Cmdr. A. H. G. Storr, captain of the Nootka, said at a press conference after their arrival.

The two Tribal class destroyers slipped into harbor here—first time in history that Canadian warships have touched this northern Manitoba port.

Cmdr. Storr, captain of the Nootka, said the voyage from Halifax took nine days. The vessel encountered snow squalls, fog and icebergs while crossing Hudson Bay, but Cmdr. Storr and Lt.-Cmdr. A. F. Picard of Halifax, Haida's captain, said the cruise had been a great success so far.

It has given the men a good insight into the Arctic territory and an idea of the conditions they would encounter if they had to work in this part of Canada.

TOWN THAT INHERITED $20,000,000 HASN'T FIGURED HOW TO SPEND IT

MAIN STREET, PERRYOPOLIS — The multi-mill naire community looks like any other tiny town.

By JOANNE MILLIGAN
Central Press Canadian

This little town is still buzzing about its approximate $20,000,000 inheritance from a former resident, Mrs. Mary Frazier, who was Mary Fuller when she lived there some 60 years ago.

The bequest was made in a will probated in Philadelphia following Mrs. Frazier's death in a New York hospital Aug. 6.

All but $210,000 of the 83-year-old woman's vast estate went to this Pennsylvania community where she was born. Bequests totalling $110,000 went to 18 individuals and organizations.

They included a $100,000 trust fund to pay two watchmen to guard the family mausoleum day and night at the Perryopolis cemetery where Mrs. Frazier's body is entombed. The watchmen are living in a trailer near the mausoleum.

Only one person in Perryopolis knew that Mrs. Frazier, who had no living heirs, was going to leave her money to the town to be used for civic improvements.

In October, 1947, Howard Adams, vice-president of the local bank, received a letter from the aged woman's attorneys revealing her intentions and instructing strict silence on Adams' part.

"I didn't even tell my wife," said the 75-year-old banker who has served as consultant to the estate since 1902.

In her will, Mrs. Frazier said she wanted to leave her money to "the place where I was born and lived, where my father and mother lived, and where my grandfather and grandmother lived."

Reaction is mixed on the part of the 1,300 residents of Perryopolis. They're interested, of course. The money may mean a new library, sewer system and community hall for the town. On the other hand, Perryites object to the idea that they were struggling along in poverty before the unexpected windfall.

They hoot at published descriptions of Perryopolis as a "little mining hamlet". Actually, the town is a clean, attractive community, boasting up-to-date stores, paved streets and almost 100 ten-cent, home ownership.

The money is going to make a difference but, as Adams puts it, "We aren't ready to pave the streets with gold."

FULLER MAUSOLEUM—For maintenance and care, $100,000 set aside. Right now, the residents are inclined to treat the whole thing in a facetious vein until all the red tape of the will is straightened out and plans actually are made for improvement.

The favorite greeting is, "Hi, millionaire", and suggestions for spending the money are at least 3,500 strong.

For one thing, hardly anybody remembers Mrs. Frazier. Adams, himself, had met her only twice. Reports differ on just how many times she had been back to Perryopolis in the 60 odd years since she moved to Philadelphia when she was barely 20. Adams believes Mrs. Frazier visited her birthplace only once since 1900 and that occasion was the funeral of Alfred Fuller, the uncle who left her the bulk of the money.

One of Mrs. Frazier's girlhood friends, Mrs. E. P. Stickle, said she used to visit once in a while but she didn't always look up people here.

Mrs. Stickle recalls that Mary was a vivacious, high-spirited girl who left Perryopolis for Philadelphia because the "town was too small". When Alfred Fuller died in 1918, Mary and her cousin, Alice, were willed five million dollars each. Mary, meantime, had married Dr. Louis Posey, a Philadelphia physician. At his death, she re-married but later divorced her second husband, John Miller Frazier, Philadelphia hotel executive.

The family fortune was established by farming and enlarged by speculation in stocks.

Mrs. Stickle recalls that Mary and Alice were direct opposites. Mary loved the good things of life, liked to travel and didn't mind spending money, although she had the reputation for being an extremely shrewd businesswoman. Alice was thrifty to the point of being penurious.

"Alice didn't care a thing about clothes," Mrs. Stickle said, "and she did without electricity in her home rather than spend the money to have it installed."

Banker Adams added that, "When Alice died, her money went to Mary. Almost all of the fortune was intact because of her thrift and Mary doubled the fortune later by wise investments."

Mary apparently retained her preference for city life over the duller doings of Perryopolis. She became a permanent resident of Philadelphia, although a few of the last years of her life were spent in Connecticut.

Despite her fortune, Mrs. Frazier was virtually unknown in Philadelphia where she lived in obscurity. Her will recalls that of Mrs. Mabel W. Jones who left $2,985,788 to the town of Lithopolis, O., a community of 300 persons. The Jones will was probated in August, two years after the death of Mrs. Jones who was the daughter of Adam Willis Wagnall, Lithopolis-born co-founder of the Funk and Wagnall Publishing Company.

The Perryopolis townspeople are inclined to view their inheritance as very secondary to the fact that Perryopolis is the site of George Washington's Old Mill which was set in operation by the first president in 1790.

Canadians Lack Vitamin "C" In Winter Months

TORONTO. — A survey made by dietary experts of the Toronto General Hospital and the Hospital for Sick Children has revealed a great percentage of Canadian adults and children get too little vitamin C during the winter months.

A study of Toronto families showed only five per cent of the children and 33 per cent of the adults surveyed were getting the minimum daily requirements of the vitamin.

Previous surveys in five Canadian cities showed the vitamin shortage was most common in families with low incomes. They showed that 70 per cent of the families with diets short of vitamin C had incomes of between $1,500 and $2,500 a year.

Only four reasonably priced Canadian foods contain even moderate amounts of vitamin C: Cabbage, turnips, tomatoes and potatoes that haven't been stored too long.

The survey, reported in the current issue of the Canadian Medical Association Journal, was made by Dr. Elizabeth Robertson and Margaret E. Galloway.

Increase In Duck Population

SWIFT CURRENT—An increase in the duck population in western Canada was evident since the 1948 breeding season. R. W. Cartwright, chief naturalist of Ducks Unlimited, said in a statement recently.

"There was a satisfactory improvement over last year in northern Alberta, a slight, but appreciable improvement in northern Saskatchewan, difficult conditions to assess in northern Manitoba but inclined in the plus side," he said.

"High water levels prevailed over nearly all the observed northern range. This had apparently caused considerable shifting of post-breeding concentrations," Cartwright said.

A total of 23,667 females, with 10,915 young was tallied this year which is an average of 4.25 per brood. The long-term average is six.

G. Campbell of Ducks Unlimited, says, "There are lots of ducks on the prairie this year." Reports received during the past month were favorable, he said. Frank Clark, another worker, who has covered most of the agricultural area of the province states that he has seen more water and ducks than in any year since 1947-48.

Angus Gavin, who is stationed at Swift Current, says "there are far more ducks than last year." Botulism at Barber lake took quite a heavy toll, the estimated loss being 1,500 birds.

"A few permits have been issued by the provincial government to farmers to protect their crops from ducks. Directly north and west of Swift Current the prospects are reported very satisfactory. All larger bodies of water are beginning to show heavy concentrations of birds and reports indicate much heavier population than has been experienced for many years," Mr. Gavin said.

ELECTRIC CURRENT IS BOSS OF MODERN HOME

Even in households served by the most efficient power company the electric current will, occasionally, go off. There is no way of knowing when it will go on again.

The lights go off and there is nothing to read by. Even worse, the radio can't be used and there is nothing to listen to.

Telling time is confined to primitive clocks and watches that have to be wound by hand. The refrigerator stops refrigerating. The electric range stops cooking.

Hostility Is Inevitable In Family Life, Says Health Consultant

NEW YORK. — Don't expect your husband or wife to love you all the time—or you're in for trouble.

And when your young child gets angry with you, even to saying he'd gladly kill you, don't punish him. Take it easy. All children feel that way at times.

And don't spoil things at home by overworking the old adage: "don't put off until tomorrow what can be done today." It makes for a neurotic kind of life.

All these are just some of the elements that can produce an unhappy home life, says Dr. Luther E. Woodward, field consultant of the National Committee for Mental Health.

A lot depends on the kind of people who live in the home, and what they do and think.

One cause of trouble is the movie and fiction idea of "they lived happily ever after". Dr. Woodward said. A wedding is pictured as the scene of happiness, and the first month of marriage as the happiest. That's nonsense, he says, and when tempers flare and quarrels start, the disillusioned spouse may start to worry and brood.

"Probably no one loves anyone 100 per cent of the time. Some anger and hostility is natural and inevitable. If married people, understand that, they can make allowances when a snafu is upset, and avoid serious quarrels that last a year."

And, he continued, "there's just no way to bring up children so they won't be angry with you at some time. When you do have to cross them or deny them something, they may get violently angry, hating you, even threatening you. When they talk that way, don't punish them. Punishment would only add to their resentment. Listen to the child, let him know you understand what he means, and be willing to play with as soon as he's ready. His anger blows over much sooner, and he avoids nervous reactions and lasting resentments."

Homes need safety-valve people. Dr. Woodward said. "If you are one member of the family, and preferably all, should be good at relieving others of their troubles, good at draining off their feelings of hostility, fear, and anger."

In many homes, he added, the enjoyment of today is spoiled by someone's nagging about past mistakes, or about possible future troubles.

Families should use the present to enrich each member's joy and satisfaction as much as they can. Following the old adage of not postponing "till tomorrow what can be done today" can produce a nation of neurotics. Instead, people should do today what is important today, and forget the rest. That doesn't mean laziness or lack of foresight.

"Mental health suffers from wrong ideas about too much authority, or too little discipline. The mental health of children suffers when they are punished or denied too much. But it also suffers when they are made to make their own decisions too early, before they have had time to work out any set of values."

The real goal is to teach children to discipline themselves. The way to do this is first to give them a congenial, happy home. Give them a backlog of satisfactions, so they can take it when the parents have to clamp down and say "No."

The National Film Board

THE WORK OF THE NATIONAL FILM BOARD is known to most Canadians, who have seen documentary and educational films produced by this organization. These pictures have contributed extensively toward the spreading of education and culture in Canada and have played an important part in familiarizing people with the beauties of the country as well as with its cultural and industrial progress. While such pictures are seen by many Canadians each year, it is perhaps not generally known that pictures made by the National Film Board also reach large audiences outside of Canada and do much not only to acquaint people of other countries with the Dominion, but play an important part in advertising Canadian products abroad and increasing foreign trade.

Show Products Canada Sells

It is estimated that 70,000,000 people in 60 countries each year see films made by the National Film Board, showing products which Canada has to sell. These films are made in co-operation with various government departments and with industries, and have proved to be of great value in advertising Canadian products abroad. Such films as "The Canadian Wheat Story," "Tomorrow's Timber" and "The Fur Trade" have advertised the products of these primary Canadian industries to people of many countries, as have "Red Runs the River" which tells of salmon fishing in British Columbia and "Fashions in Canada" which brought many orders for clothes made in Canada. These films not only help to sell Canadian goods, but they attract people from other countries to come here as tourists and as permanent settlers.

Great Progress Made In Britain

The documentary film is a branch of motion picture production which has wide appeal and which has assumed importance in recording the cultural, social and industrial progress of a nation for the benefit of its own people as well as those of other countries. Reality and honesty are essential features of such films and a high degree of skill and experience are required to make them successfully. Since the war, Britain has made notable progress in this field and credit is given to producers there for contributing a great deal to this branch of film production. The work of Canada's National Film Board likewise conforms to high standards and is instrumental in building up a broader and more authentic knowledge of Canada and the Canadian way of life both here and in the many foreign countries to which Canadian films are sent.

Farmers' Cash Income Advance

OTTAWA.—Farmers' cash income from the sale of their produce advanced steadily to a total of $74,212,000 in the first half of 1948 from $73,704,000 in the corresponding period last year and $29,183,000 in 1946, the Bureau of Statistics reports.

Adding in the supplementary cash payments under the Prairie Farm Assistance Act, the Wheat Acreage Reduction Act and the Prairie Farm Income Act, the total cash receipts for the first half of this year were $89,572,000 against $74,212,000 in 1947 and $30,244,000 in 1946. A large share of the increase was attributed to substantial sums paid out in western Canada by the Canadian Wheat Board in connection with adjusting, participation and final equalization payments on wheat, flaxseed and oats.

HUMAN BEINGS COULD USE THIS HANDY EYE

According to the Calgary Albertan a museum expedition has brought back from Africa a fly whose eyes are placed at the ends of long stalks that flare sharply to the right and left. They permit the insect to stand still and see around corners. Life on our planet might be a good deal safer and happier if nature had seen fit to graft stalk eyes on homo sapiens instead of a member of the muscidæ family. Think what a boon such an optical arrangement would have been for pedestrians, motorists and diplomats.

Proprietor: "Do you want the job?"

Simpleton: "No, I was merely curious to learn how the canaries lost their tails."

"This is the radiator and here is the fan," explained the car salesman.
"That's fine!" announced the lady. "I've always wanted an all-season car."

Fate Caller: "You spoiled my article by a misprint."
Editor: "I'm sorry. What did we get wrong?"

Caller: "A proverb I employed. You printed it 'A word to the wife is sufficient.'"

Judge: "What possible excuse did you fellows have for acquitting that murderer?"
Jurymen: "Inanity?"
Judge: "Really? The whole 12 of you?"

The Scottish farmer had fallen into the well. Frothing water vigorously, he shouted for his wife.
"Hold on!" she cried. "I'll call the men from the field."

"Wait a minute," he said. "What's the time?"
"Eleven-thirty."

"Then hide a wee, I'll swim roon' till their dinner-time."

It helps nature (you know what we mean). This great medicine also has what Doctors call a stomachic tonic effect.

Forecast 1948 Wheat Crop At 391,000,000 Bu.

OTTAWA.—A 1948 wheat crop of 391,000,000 bushels—more than 50,000,000 bushels over the harvest of 1947—has been forecast by the Bureau of Statistics.

The forecast was made in the Bureau's second estimate of Canada's field crops. The first estimate, made Aug. 17, placed the wheat crop at 372,000,000 and the harvest attributed the larger prospects to exceptionally good maturing and harvest weather during August.

The wheat estimate includes 362,661,000 bushels of spring wheat, produced mainly on the three prairie provinces, and 28,339,000 bushels of winter wheat which comes mostly from Ontario.

The enhanced crop prospects, which mean more money in the pockets of Canadian farmers, included estimates that the oats crop would total 361,728,000 bushels compared with 282,714,000 last year, barley 157,123,000 bushels against 141,451,000, rye 26,608,000 against 13,217,000 and flaxseed 17,748,000 against 12,240,800.

The estimate rye crop included 20,651,000 bushels of fall rye and 5,957,000 from spring production.

Production of the five leading grains on the prairies follows, with 1947 totals in brackets:

Three provinces—wheat 358,000,000 (310,000,000); oats 223,000,000 (194,000,000); barley 144,000,000 (131,000,000); rye 23,600,000 (11,630,000); flaxseed 17,000,000 (11,590,000).

Average yields per acre, in bushels, are estimated as follows, with 1947 figures in brackets:

Wheat 16.2 (14.0); oats 32.3 (25.2); barley 24.2 (18.9); rye 12.7 (11.4); flax 19.9 (14.0); dry beans 15.7 (15.0); soy beans 21.0 (18.2); buckwheat 23.1 (17.9); mixed grains 40.6 (30.4); flaxseed 9.2 (7.5); shelled corn 51.0 (37.9).

BEAVER NOT IMPRESSED WITH MANITOBA CAPITAL

RATHWELL, Man.—A distinguished visitor from southern Manitoba has paid a visit to the capital of the province—and as far as can be ascertained he was not impressed.

He wore a brown coat, a tired expression, and took a jaundiced view of Winnipeg. He was "A1064", one of the largest beaver ever caught in southern Manitoba.

The beaver is about five feet long, weighs 75 pounds and is as powerful as a man. "A1064" is about 10 years old, a respectable age in any beaver colony.

He was caught south of here on the Boyne River by Douglas Ferla, a game guardian. Beaver are becoming a nuisance in the south of the province. The game and fisheries branch is caging them and shipping them north, where they will increase.

CIGARETTE SMOKING ON THE INCREASE IN CANADA

OTTAWA.—Despite high costs, cigarette smoking appears to be increasing in Canada.

The Bureau of Statistics reported that in the first seven months of the year 8,785,000,000 cigarettes were released, compared with 8,321,000,000 in the corresponding period of 1947.

Notes For Mothers Packing Lunches For School Children

MANY school children find it impossible to get home in the daily luncheon period and, therefore, must take their lunch to school. And for uncounted years school lunches have been a problem to many mothers.

Once a year, Health Rights Magazine offers mothers advice about school lunches and we with them present the ideas of the Nutrition Division of the Saskatchewan Department of Public Health on the subject. The Saskatchewan department deals with the subject in an attractive four-page pamphlet—"Notes for Lunch-Packing Mothers". Here they are—

The Lunch Pail
What kind?—Metal is the best because it must be washed and scalded regularly. There should be air holes for ventilation. And, don't forget a handle! It makes it much easier to carry.

How To Pack
Line with wax paper or serviette. Wrap each food separately. Put heavier foods on the bottom—food easily crushed on the top.

A Good Lunch?
What's that? One that contains enough food and the right kind. Milk—for bones and teeth. A vegetable or a fruit—both if possible. Bread—whole grain or Canada. Approved proteins—such as meat, fish, cheese, eggs or peanut butter. Hot food—cocoa, soups, scalloped dishes.

The Jar Method
Each child carries a jar of food from home in his lunch kit. These jars can be reheated at school in a large kettle of hot water—a canner serves the purpose very well. It is necessary to have a rack in the bottom to keep the jars off the direct heat. This may be made of wire, or it may be just a piece of board about three-quarters of an inch thick. Holes bored in it will allow the water, as it heats, to come up around the jars. If put on the stove to heat at recess the food will be piping hot by noon. Then each child eats his food from his jar and takes it home to be washed, and refilled for tomorrow.

Equipment
A large kettle, canner, or a boiler with a rack.
Oven mitts or potholders for lifting out hot jars.

Ed's Note
The above method probably applies to schools in rural areas, and not to city schools where stoves—other than in cafeterias—are not available because of central heating systems. However, many thousands of rural children take lunches to school and this method is certainly applicable to them.)

What Foods For The Jar?
Here's the answer—Baked beans, milk pudding, shepherd's pie, vegetable stew, creamed chicken, vegetable chowder, spaghetti and meat with tomatoes, macaroni and cheese or tomatoes, creamed carrots or other vegetables, scalloped potatoes or other vegetables, liver or salmon loaf, creamed eggs, soup, cocoa with milk.

Luscious Lunches
Vegetable milk soup, crackers peanut butter on whole wheat bread, oatmeal cookie, apple. Recess snack—brown muffin.

Meat loaf sandwich on rye bread, carrot strips, rice and raisin pudding, bran muffin, milk. Recess snack—apple.

Macaroni and cheese, brown bread and butter, turnip strips, raisin blatt, banana, milk. Recess snack—cookie.

Tomato soup, cheese on whole wheat bread, cabbage salad, cup of cake, orange. Recess snack—cinnamon bun.

Sandwich Suggestions
Peanut butter and crisp bacon. Minced meat and grated carrot. Ground liver and pickle.

Lettuce and cucumber. Cheese and chopped nuts. Peanut butter and celery.

Scrambled eggs with bacon. Cottage cheese and marmalade. Flaked fish and salad dressing. Grated cheese, raw carrots and salad dressing.

LOOK PLEASANT, PLEASE
BOSTON.—This sign was noted in front of a downtown church: "Look Pleasant, Please. The World's Looking at You."

BE A HAIRDRESSER
Ladies earn more money—learn hairdressing. A profession offering ambitious women unlimited opportunities. You will receive complete, thorough training under the direct supervision of nationally known instructors. May pay as you learn plan. Write or call for complete details and illustrated booklet.

Poet's Corner

My big, new kitchen window's in.
Oh, you should see the view!
Across the valley to the hills,
And up the mountains, too,
Up in the sky, beyond the moon.
Where the stars at evening shine,
And twinkling lights, in twilight gloom.

Gaily answer mine.
The dawn-o-days a joy to see.
The mountains in rose-pink glow,
The slender shadow of a tree,
The valleys where the light-pools grow.

And all the day, the purple hills,
Behind a thin blue haze,
Set me a picture that quite fills
My window in the warm Fall days.
My kitchen window shows me, too,
The fields that grew the grain.
And there's a picture, ever new,
When I look, again.

For ours is such a pleasant land,
Of hill and glen, and everything.
I'm glad my kitchen window's in,
W.H.

Clothes, they say, will make a man.
With that I agree,
I'm full of vigor and elan,
With a blue patch on my knee!
Take your gaudy uniforms,
With everything to match,
Give me worn, old overalls.
And, on the knee, a patch.
Some folks like a well-pressed suit.
That's alright with me.
But, I'm a hard-boiled, gay galoot.
With a blue patch on my knee!
New clothes don't enter in my plan,
Them and me don't match.
But I'll stand up to any man.
The cloud-ridged sky has a gloomy look.
